

These Walls are Talking... Come Hear Their Civil War Stories

John McCaskill
National Park Service

Company H, 4th Virginia Cavalry

Go back to 1861 when the Frying Pan Meeting House served as a Field Hospital for Confederate General J.E.B. Stuart's Men. Re-enactors, exhibits, and hands-on displays bring the field hospital stories to life! This free event will include a presentation by Kyle Wichtendahl of the National Museum of Civil War Medicine on the true story of how both Confederate and Union doctors helped save soldiers' lives and the contributions they made to modern medicine.
